Amoco open house introduces Phase II

Amoco Canada Petroleum has come a long way since they drilled their first well in the Elk Point area back in 1981. At that time, they had control of 23 sections of land and reported to the Edmonton office. Since Amoco's purchase of Dome Petroleum in 1988, their Elk Point holdings have grown to 242 sections of land, making Elk Point Amoco's largest net producing area.

District Foreman Ron Johnson outlined the history of the project at last Wednesday's Open House, in addition to introducing Amoco's plans for their upcoming Phase II.

Four years after their first well was drilled, Amoco started off 1985 with 45 wells producing 90 cubic metres per day, and 12 employees. Phase I was underway, with their cleaning facility and steam plant being constructed. This was the boom year, with the Lindbergh Heavy Oil field a virtual beehive of activity. By the end of the year, Amoco had 152 wells producing.

In March, 1986, the picture changed drastically with the crash in oil prices. Drilling and pumping ground to a halt, with the field shut in for 40 days. In April, Amoco decided to start up 40 wells, but the continuing low prices constrained thermal production. "Cold" primary production became the main focus, with each well producing about 2 cubic metres per day. As the amounts of sand in the oil lessened, this production edged up to an average of 10 cubic metres, with some wells now producing as much as 80 cubic metres.

As of June 1990, Amoco had 70 employees, plus another 70 contract employees, 405 of their total 800 wells were producing and yielding in the neighborhood of 3045 cubic metres per day. Of these, 156 producing wells were on the original Phase I lands, and yielded about 1565 cubic metres per day.

Since March, the Amoco plant has been tied into the Husky Oil sales pipeline. They have also linked one of their well pads to the plant with a pipeline to reduce trucking and the resulting environmental impact. Sand resulting from the oil production is now being put into a landfill near the cleaning plant.

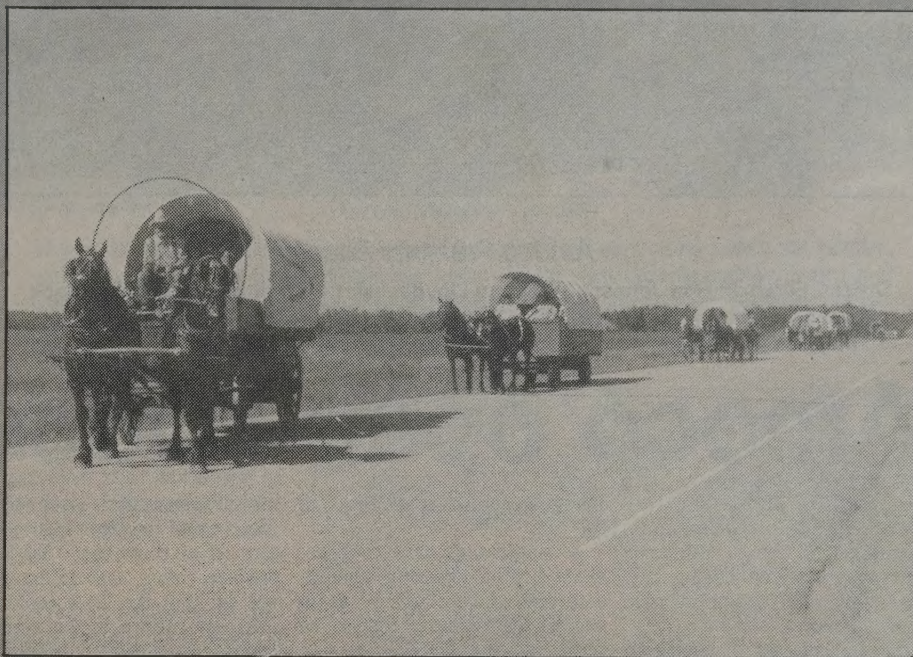

Amoco currently has two drilling rigs at work on a 49 well drilling program, with 23 wells to be located on the Phase I land and the balance on the former Dome holdings. A program to electrify 270 leases is planned for 1990, and disposal of sand into salt caverns is also in the planning stages.

Phase II would add two sections of land to Amoco's holdings, these being Sections 10 and 22-56-7, which Amoco engineers predict will be a viable source of primary oil.

The balance of Phase II depends on the developing economic situation. As finances permit, Amoco hopes to decrease well spacing on current lands to a minimum of 8 acres, to add 10 to 15 new wells per year to their primary production and to enhance recovery on other wells with cyclic steaming, and to expand their facilities to the required capacities to deal with increased production.

Based on current oil prices, the Case 1 scenario is the most likely

Heading Down Happy Trails

The Happy Trails wagon train set out in brilliant sunshine Monday morning for their five day trek through the hills and woodlands northeast of Elk Point, some of their scenic route following the trails created by the settlers in the early days of the district.

Agriculture, industry focus of service board tour

The County of St. Paul Agricultural Service Board Tour visited the easternmost reaches of the County last week, and gained new insight into the resource industries of heavy crude oil, salt, and gravel as well as visiting the customary agriculture-related sites.

Participants met at Armistice Hall, midway between Elk Point and St. Paul, early last Thursday, and viewed displays on conservation tillage, first aid, and women in agriculture while they enjoyed coffee and doughnuts and were welcomed by County Councillor Bill Ference.

Two busloads of farm men, women and children were soon on the road, bound for the interesting and informative stops on the tour.

Amoco Canada, south and east of Elk Point in the Lindbergh Heavy Oil field across the North Saskatchewan River, was first on the agenda for one busload. Engineering Group Supervisor Bill O'Callaghan gave an overview of the Amoco operation, which produces approximately 1900 barrels of heavy crude per day from 400 operating wells. Amoco has two cleaning plants in the Lindbergh field, where sand and water are removed from the oil. Those on the tour were issued hard hats and safety glasses and were soon on their way for a first hand look at one of these plants, which is located adjacent to Amoco's office.

There they saw the scales where tankers loaded with oil are weighed before dumping their cargoes into pits, from which the crude is piped to the treaters, where heat is applied to remove water from the product. Just over a mile from the plant, the tour visited a pad of slant and directional oil wells, where one of the eight slant well service rigs in the province was hard at work, and where pumps on the balance of the wells were busily pulling the oil from the depths of the earth. A brief stop at a two-well pad allowed District Foreman Ron Johnson to point out the two types of pumps used in the Lindbergh field, the beam pump with the 'horse's head' bobbing up and down, and the progressive cavity pump which works on a similar principle to a grain auger.

One week to go until Elk Point fair

Agricultural Fair fever is beginning to strike Elk Point, as exhibitors gather their crafts and canning, and plan their onslaught on garden and flower beds in a few days time.

Elk Point Agricultural Fair, featuring one of the finest bench shows in northeastern Alberta, goes August 10 and 11 in the Elk Point Elks Hall. All exhibits are to be brought in between 12:00 noon and 3:30 p.m. on Friday, August 10, in preparation for judging that evening. Public viewing of the bench show is from 2:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. on Saturday, August 11, with the presentation of prizes and aggregate awards at 7:00 p.m. Exhibits are to be removed between 8:00 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

Exhibit fee is only $1 per person, and includes a ticket to view the fair. For non-exhibitors, admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children 6 to 12 years, and children under 6 with parents, free. Coffee will be served.

Exhibitors may enter as many classes as they wish, but may only enter one item per class. All items must be the personal work of the exhibitor.

A sale of local arts and crafts will be taking place in the Pioneer Circle Hall from 1:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. on August 11, in conjunction with the fair. Tables may be booked by phoning Sharon Kuhn at 724-3803 or Carol Hellquist at 724-3954.

Amoco Presents Phase II

to go ahead. This would maintain production at about 1500 cubic metres per day from 150 primary production wells, with production to peak in 1995.

Case 2 would see thermal production with cyclic steam on Sections 28 and 29 by 1993, and more new wells drilled toward the end of the 5-year phase. This is the case on which Amoco's Phase II application to the Energy Resources Conservation Board will be based, Johnson said. "We're not ready for Case 3 yet," he added.

Johnson sees "no major change in operating strategy" at this time.

In explaining the proposed electrification program, Johnson said that Amoco has set up the project with Alberta Power. Alberta Power will contact landowners to obtain permission for installation of above ground power lines to the well leases. If this permission cannot be obtained and underground lines prove to be not economically feasible, the wells will continue to be run by internal combustion engines as they are at present.

The installation of above ground power lines was seen as an environmental issue by at least one of the Open House visitors. Alban Bugej of the Elk Point Surface rights Association pointed out that the lines could impact agriculture in the area by taking cropland out of production and by causing difficulty with aerial spraying.

Both ecological and socio-economic studies will get underway shortly, in preparation for the Phase II application, and a second public meeting scheduled for October or November will keep residents of the Elk Point area up to date on Amoco's plans for the future.

Resource recovery grant awarded to the town of Elk Point

Environment Minister, the Honourable Ralph Klein, and St. Paul MLA, John Drobot, today announced a $13,580 grant has been awarded to the Town of Elk Point under the Resource Recovery Grant Program.

"The town will use the grant to install an underground storage tank to collect and recycle used lubricating oil," Mr. Klein said. "I am pleased that the Resource Recovery Grant Program allows communities such as the Town of Elk Point to establish recycling programs."

Mr. Drobot added, "The project not only recovers a non-renewable resource but provides an environmentally safe way to dispose of oil."

Residents of Elk Point and the surrounding rural area will be encouraged to bring their used motor oil to the tank which will be located at Elk Point Public Works yard site.

The Resource Recovery Grant Program has provided funds to municipalities and nonprofit organizations since 1976 for the purchase of equipment necessary to establish recycling and waste reduction projects. The program encourages nonprofit and service groups to work with their municipalities and become involved in recycling programs.

Weekly crop report

Rain is still needed, with dry conditions continuing. Soil moisture conditions are poor, and result in estimates of poor to very poor plant growth prospects. In addition, grasshoppers are becoming a problem.

Virtually all wheat crops are now filling, along with 90 percent of barley crops, while canola is in full bloom throughout the district.

Scouts complete canoe trip

By Pat Johnson

The 1st Elk Point Scouts just completed a 150 mile river canoe trip. This was a district event in which Ashmont Scouts took part. The trip was from Goodsoil, Saskatchewan to Ile a la Crosse via the Waterhen and Beaver rivers.

I wish to thank all of those people and organizations that have supported the Scouting organization. I wish to make a special thank you to Scouter Ed Zarowny and George Newby for driving pickups for us and helping in many other ways.

Busy summer - kids at play

July has been a very busy month for the participants of Fun in the Sun and Club 3/4. Along with all of the regular games, songs and crafts that have been done, many other special activities and field trips were also enjoyed. Some of these special activities were a mini-olympics, a walk at the Recreation Land, a field trip to the St. Paul Aquatic Centre, a visit from Cleffy the Clown, and a trip out to a local farm to see the animals.

August will be an even busier month for the Summer Program participants since more themes will be used. Hopefully, we will be a bit more involved with other members of the community as well. Watch for us.

Sailing Course

Community Services helped organize another successful Sailing Course on July 28 and 29. Special thanks are extended to Don Hutton and family for hosting the event at their property at Muriel Lake. This was the last sailing course to be offered this summer but there will be other courses offered next year.

Canada Day omission

Our sincere apologies to two firms whose contributions to the Canada Day celebration were not listed in our windup article. Byers Transport, who kindly loaned us the trailer for use as a dressing room, and B & R Transport, whose flatdeck served as extra space for the music equipment adjacent to the stage, were indeed important contributors to our celebration, and we do appreciate their efforts. Also, our apologies to anyone else whose name may have been omitted. Rest assured, your contribution was appreciated.

Then it was off through farmland and forest dotted with oil wells, and north across the river at Heinsburg, for a lunch stop at Ross Lake, a pleasant campground which is part of Whitney Lakes Provincial Park. County staff had the barbecues loaded with burgers and tables full of salads and buns for the hungry crowd.

After lunch, the tour continued with a stop at the Canadian Salt Plant at Lindbergh, where softened river water is pumped 3700 feet into massive beds of salt capable of supplying North American needs for 2000 years. The resulting brine is brought back to the surface, and processed in the plant to provide salt for dinner tables and industry. The brine goes in to seven storey high pans, which are heated with steam to evaporate the water and leave the salt. The resulting slurry, a very concentrated salt solution, is then treated to remove impurities such as calcium sulfate, then gravity fed into a filter which removes the brine from the salt. The salt is then cooled and cured, before being crushed into the 41 kinds of salt produced at the plant. A huge diagram in the pan room operator's office allows the operator to immediately pinpoint problems in the processing plant. Those touring the plant saw where household salt is boxed, where water softener and fishery salts are sealed into bags, and where road salt is stored in huge sheds to await winter, as well as the hydraulic press where salt is formed into livestock blocks.

Next stop was at a solar greenhouse four miles northeast of Elk Point, where owner Rob Holliday pointed out the giant pile of fieldstone which serves as a solar collector inside the 28 foot high windows of the superinsulated building. A wood fired hot water heater provides extra heat for winter growing. Seven tiers of bags, each filled with a mixture of topsoil, rotted manure and compost, are ranged along the rocks, with the lowest rows each housing a month old tomato plant. Holliday also pointed out his compost heap to the south of the greenhouse, and showed the difference in garden crops grown with and without compost.

Thirteen varieties of barley in plots at the Larry Babcock farm were viewed with considerable interest. These included three new varieties, Condor, Brier and 1602. Crop specialist Ellis Treffery was on hand to point out the various points of each variety, and to comment on their potentials for various uses. He noted that two varieties, Tupper and Condor, are hullless, which makes them useful for poultry and hog feeding. Yields of all varieties depend on moisture and management.

The tour then led to the Atimoswe Creek valley, just north of Highway 28, where the County's new gravel crusher is hard at work preparing surfacing materials for the area's roads. County Reeve Robert Bouchard told the group that the County has spent an average of $350,000 on gravel crushing in each of the past 5 years, and decided last fall that purchasing their own crusher and loader would be a financially sound move. The handsome new unit, costing $730,000, and a new loader priced at $252,000, will be paid for over the next three years. The crusher was built by El Russ of Calgary, and El Russ representatives were on hand to point out the many features of the unit. The 125 horsepower jaw will crush up to 18 inch rocks down to 4 inch, which are then conveyed to the cone where they are further crushed to the desired size. The road-ready gravel then goes to a surge bin, where a truck can be loaded in less than one minute.

Final stop on the tour was back at Armistice Hall, where a subsoiler was waiting to demonstrate the process of breaking up hardpan. Then it was off to the laden barbecues where each hungry individual could cook up a steak just to their own liking, and surround it with salads, potatoes and buns prepared by the County staff.

Numerous door prizes were given out, courtesy of the day's sponsors: BASF, Paulchuk Farm Equipment, Paul Caouette and Sons, Dupont Chemicals, Oliver Chemicals, UGG, as well as prizes donated by Bernie Nesimiuk and Emma Sanders.

County Agricultural Fieldman Dennis Bergheim presented cheques and County pins to the winners of a photo contest held through the schools to promote soil conservation practices. Amanda Stark was the first prize winner, with Robert Boutin second.

The evening was enlivened with a soil conservation skit, in which District Home Economist Monica King narrated the story of a terrible, horrible, no good, very bad year, accompanied by a slide show.

A very good farming experience, in direct contrast, was then the focus, as Bill Ference presented the Farm Family of the Year award to Rudolph, Leona, Leo and Diane Cote, in the form of a cheque and engraved plaque from Edmonton Northlands. Ference noted that the award is based on a model operation, with good farming techniques and good community involvement, in all of which the Cotes are "simply outstanding."

One final skit, entitled "Radio Static" and reminiscent of the noon hour farm report, finished up the day on a hilarious note.

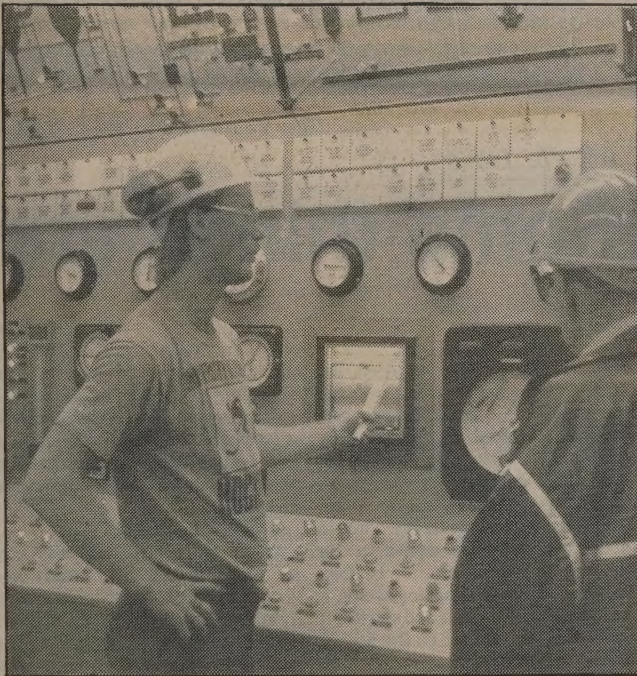

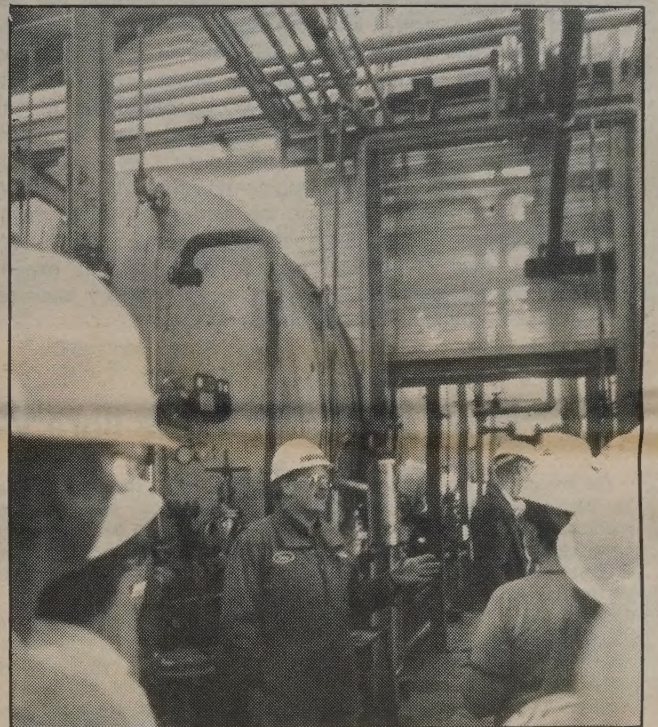

Greenhouse Grower

Robert Holliday (centre) shows the Service Board Tour participants his solar heated, superinsulated greenhouse which has tomatoes for winter consumption growing in tiers of sacks filled with a soil mixture. As the days get shorter and weather cooler, hot water heating will supplement the solar heat stored in the massive rock pile under the plants.

Celebrate your heritage

Here comes what we've all been waiting for—a long weekend smack in the middle of summer. Time to head for the lake, to go fishing, to take in one of the events that highlight summer. For some of us, these events include a family reunion. What better time for a family reunion than the Heritage Day weekend?

Reunions are a great time to catch up on what all the members of your family have been doing, to see the new babies and how the older children have grown, to find out that you aren't the only one in your family to sprout grey hair and wrinkles, to hear all the family gossip. It's also a perfect time to talk about the years gone by, and to listen to the oldest members of your family as they tell about their early experiences. Maybe you never knew that Grandpa broke the prairie sod with a walking plow, or that Great Uncle Fred sailed on a freighter around Cape Horn. You may be unaware that Great Grandma once met the Queen, or that some of your ancestors walked much of the way across the country behind a creaking Red River cart.

Heritage is much more than an ethnic background, with the foods, customs and folk dances that have been handed down from generation to generation. It is also the events in the lives of our forefathers and foremothers, whether these happened in far-off countries or on the pioneer homesteads of our own district. All these things have had a part in shaping the lives we live today.

Our family background is something we don't often think about, but it is one of the most important things we can own. It is something which helps to make each of us unique. Whether we treasure a great-grandparent's cake recipe, or wear a brooch handed down through the generations, whether we lovingly polish the rifle Great Grandpa used to shoot buffalo on the prairies or carefully dust the ornate frame of some long ago wedding picture, we are celebrating our heritage. When we listen to the stories the senior members of our families have to tell, we are storing up their experiences in our memory bank as another treasure.

Have a happy Heritage Day.

Wheat Pool Barbecue Winner

Elk Point Alberta Wheat Pool Manager Jack Skulski and his assistant Tim Kubista congratulate Laverne Kjenner, winner of their recent draw for a gas barbecue. To qualify for the draw, entrants were required to submit their application for a permit book for the 1990-91 crop year to the elevator.

What's news at the library?

The lazy days of summer are upon us. Why not stop in the bright, air conditioned library and spend awhile browsing through the collection or sitting in a comfortable chair reading a magazine? Some of the new books that are available to borrow are:

A Good Enough Parent by Bruno Bettelheim—A thoughtful, positive, highly recommended book that reaffirms child rearing as a creative and joyful experience. In this book, the preeminent child psychologist of our time gives us the results of his lifelong effort to determine what is most crucial in successful child rearing.

The Elk Point Library would like to thank Gaby Bayduza for the donation of the book Holistic Resource Management. In a provocative presentation, Allan Savory addresses the question of why, "despite universal efforts to halt the rape of our land, air and water resources, along with many forms of plant and animal life, they continue to deteriorate at an alarming rate throughout our planet." The result, presented here for the first time in book form, is a comprehensive planning model that treats people and their environment as a whole.

The Summer Reading Program continues. On Friday, the preschoolers enjoyed a lively storytime including stories, a finger play and a puppet show. The children also joined in a few rounds of "Old MacDonald." After that, paper fish were painted and potato sea urchins were constructed. The children went outside to play a game of "Duck, Duck, Goose." On Tuesday, the elementary kids took part in a rock hunting expedition. They then returned inside to paint their findings as anything from swordfish to Martians. A game of charades followed.

This week's children's matinee will be The Frog Prince and The Magic Antelope, Thursday afternoon at 3:00 p.m. See you there.

Alberta Trails

Some things are so small

By Irene Magnusson

I was sitting out on my deck, the other day, reading, and just enjoying the summer day, when I heard a sort of buzz. I glanced up, to see a tiny grey-brown hummingbird, hovering in the air a few feet from my head, apparently trying to decide if my brooch—or eyes—whatever, would make a lunch, if he dipped in. He must have decided not, for he then turned and hovered again, eyeing a bouquet of delphiniums and spirea I'd stuck in a jug and set on the deck a few hours earlier.

Neither of us pleased him, I gathered, for he soon zipped off, into the golden elder boughs, and I saw him no more.

But what caught my attention, and imagination, were his tiny eyes, wee pinpoints of glitter, no larger than a radish seed, yet surely, as in all nature, so perfect. His vision must have been much keener than mine, even with my costly glasses, for I would never have attempted to dart full speed between the railings, as he did, nor recognized a suitable feast from the distance of several rods.

The extreme tininess of this little creature, perhaps three inches from beak-tip to tail-tip, and about the same wingspread when in flight, never fails to astonish me. The fact that these wisps of energy and feathers can motivate themselves to fly from here to Mexico, or even into South America, for wintering, then all the way back to our Alberta parklands, is truly astonishing.

I once held a hummingbird in my hand, after he had knocked himself senseless against a window, an almost weightless morsel of fluff and hearthrob, his tiny toes looking like curls of thread, the splash of red at his throat as bright as if he were spilling his life's blood with each pulse beat. I could have enclosed him with my other hand, and covered him completely. I put him on the ground under a nearby tree, and in a minute or so he shook himself and fluttered, then leaped up to an overhanging branch. When I looked a bit later, he was gone.

So tiny. Yet so perfect.

Again, a butterfly fluttered past me, then dipped to light briefly on a flower, no hesitation, no miss. Butterfly knew where it was going. Why not? With his tiny eyes, he could see as well as I. I am sure even the most minute mite has his well-constructed set of orbs, perhaps pre-focused to a very short distance, yet sufficient for his needs.

I hesitate to suggest that even a germ or a microbe, perhaps even a virus, may be so equipped as well, able to see just where they are going and what to settle on and make their meal. Perhaps they come with feelers or radar, to enable them to pick their own particular feast.

I am sure that every fuzzy tan moth out there, hatched from the relentless forest tent caterpillar, has a well-developed pair of eyes, with which to detect on just which bush to stash their clutch of eggs, so the miserable little hatchlings will be in priority position to get an immediate and suitable bellyful when the little darlings hatch next spring.

I'm not saying the Master in the Sky—or Old Mother Nature—as the case may be—was partial to the 'little ones,' when the die of creation was cast, but it does seem like it, as if they got the best of the deal. If we were all treated the same, humans, with their size, should be well able 'to leap tall buildings with a single bound,' see around corners and otherwise have a much easier time of it than we do.

How far could a horse jump, if he were as comparatively agile as a grasshopper? What damage might a Canada goose do, if it had the speed and hoverability of a hummingbird?

Even seeds, from a fat walnut down to a petunia seed smaller than a grain of dust, has a built in knowledge, a know-how to develop, sprout and grow, each one into the exact replica of its parent plant—and no other—(unless some geneticist has been fooling around). Think how handy it would be if we already had our life work laid out for us, already planned to the nth degree.

Most of us wouldn't like that, I'm sure, but it would save a lot of studying and work.

It turns out that the smaller the life-form is, the more aggravating it can be, if it sets out to interfere with humankind. For example, we soon learned how to defeat the sabertooth tiger, and the mammoth; the dinosaur didn't stand a chance. But look what a pocket gopher can do to your lawn, before you can figure out how to stop him, and one measly mole seems bent on destroying my whole row of peas, single-handed. Then there are the cutworms in the spring, a few hundred, perhaps, almost succeeding in wiping out the entire seedling.

When we come to the itty-bitty ones, like mosquitoes, black flies, or aphids—well we know them and their ways only too well. Lice and fleas are instruments of torture for those unfortunate enough to fall prey to them, but the really tough ones are much smaller than they. Big tough ones, like microbes and germs, have succumbed to vaccines and penicillin, but those little ones, the viruses and such, hang in there, defying most of our threats, although a few have fallen.

Report from the Legislature

Livestock industry diversification in Alberta

By John Drobot

Game animal production in Alberta is soon to be expanded, allowing for the sale of elk meat from animals raised on licensed game production farms in the province. Game animal production can be very lucrative for farmers because three saleable commodities are produced: meat, velvet antlers and breeding stock, each of which is in demand.

Our traditional agricultural products continue to face increasingly stiff competition from other countries, and our producers need opportunities to diversify. Under the recently introduced Livestock Industry Diversification Act this will be possible.

Alberta already has approximately 120 licensed game animal farms. About 3,300 elk, plus small numbers of moose, white tail deer, and mule deer are being raised on these farms. However, at present, only the raising and sale of animals for breeding stock and the sale of velvet antlers is allowed.

The responsibility for overseeing the production of game animals will be transferred from the Department of Forestry, Lands and Wildlife to the Department of Agriculture. The raising of game animals will only be allowed on licensed farms that are regularly inspected for compliance with all rules and regulations that will be enacted for this new industry.

Fish and Wildlife Officials will continue to tightly control and restrict the collection of live wild game animals under the Wildlife Act.

Game production animals will be slaughtered under the system of controls and in the slaughter facilities that already exist in Alberta. All elk presented for slaughter will be inspected for proof that they came from a licensed game animal production farm. In order to ensure producers do not add wild animals to their herds, or that poachers do not try and sell elk to slaughter houses, all producers will be required to tag their animals with prenumbered tags and each tag must be accounted for.

The meat industry is one of the most highly regulated in Canada, and is fully capable of handling elk meat in a manner which will protect both the consumer and the wildlife of Alberta.

Game animal production is also environmentally friendly. Farmed elk are maintained almost entirely on pasture and hay. This means less need for cultivation, which is an important consideration from the point of view of reducing the use of fossil fuels and conserving the soil.

If you have any questions or concerns about provincial government matters please feel free to call or write me. In St. Paul call Monday, 9:00 to 4:00, 645-2743; in Elk Point call Wednesday, 9:00 to 4:00, 724-3926; or write to 513 Legislature Building, Edmonton, Alberta, T5K 2B6.

Delegates had the opportunity to attend four of a possible ten select-a-sessions. The select-a-sessions reflected the issues of interest to farm women today and covered such topics as housing trends, diversification of the family farm, family communication, the GST, women and fatigue, and literacy.

An anniversary celebration rounded out the conference events. Highlights of the celebration included a fashion show, an anniversary cake, a look at the first six decades of Alberta Women's Week through music and shared experiences, and an opportunity to socialize with other delegates. We were really honored to have Mrs.

Mary Campbell attend the anniversary celebration. Mrs. Campbell was one of the delegates of the very first Alberta Women's Week conference back in 1930.
